ade in the week ending Oct. 25 did reach expectations in some lines, the her being too mild to sell fall and ter goods or for people to lay in sups of fruits and vegetables, even the remerchants hesitating to lay in fall and ter stocks as freely as usual. Still, de is only delayed by the weather, there no actual loss. The week presented but price changes. Dry goods ruled ady, leather is very firm, but no advance been made, and hides are active at unnged prices. The produce market has much of a surprise; eggs, poultry, ter and cheese, which were weaker in early part of the month, are now very and have an advancing tendency. s are so scarce that the dealers are ady drawing on the cold storage houses part of their supplies, and choice butis in active request at the recent adice. Several articles in the drug line vanced during the week, but linseed oil lined 1 cent a gallon. Fruits and vegeles, almost without exception, are ady and firm, cabbage being higher. ars are in large supply and selling low, all other fruits are moving freely at roved prices. But few oranges are on market, lemons also being in light ply, but with the light demand the supis ample. Seeds are ruling steady and ving freely. In fact, it has been a good

EFFECTS OF MENTAL TENSION.

Keep a Natural Pose?

We never know how active our imaginations can be till we let them out, or till they get the better of us, for some reason. A major in the army, stationed at Gassett's Mills, recently admitted to a reporter for the Statesman, in that place, that when he went into action for the first time he was so scared that he did not know which way was north, but he had an overwhelming desire to reach it, wherever it was. Yet, after six or eight battles, and after being wounded a couple of times, he regarded battles very much as people hereabout regard the even-ing fight at the Manhattan end of the bridge. Cases of wanting to run when bullets fly are no means difficult to find. But a young soldier in Brooklyn confesses to a more queer experience. His regiment was in camp, and had been ordered out for dress parade, as usual. When lined up for inspection, every man as stiff this young man-a lieutenant-began to ask him-"Suppose I should slip or anything, to break the quiet? Suppose I should fall?" idea of falling kept growing in his mind till before the inspection was over and the regiment was allowed to use its feet once more, he could hardly keep on his legs, and was in a sweat of agony, from the dread of tumbling over and making an exhibition of himself. People who have never tried it do not realize how hard it is to stand absolutely still and yet appear interested and at ease. Artists' models succeed at it, especially those in Italy, and will hold a pose, not too difficult, for an hour. Actors, when they group about the man in the cen ter of the stage, who is enjoying all the limelight-and how they hate him for it!-are required to keep still, so as not to distract attention from the great man's savings and motions, and because they must group in such way as to form a picture and keep it till it can be realized by the eyes in front. But this enforced statuesqueness is hard on the supes. They are not used to it. When they are put under the strain, and when, as Roman warriors, they must stand at the back without winking while Brutus or Virginius or some other ponderous person unbosoms himself respecting love or olitics, they are in a small torture. One such, last season, who could no longer abide it to listen to the soliloquy by the head man, pitched

arms, to the spoiling of the scene. BIBLES FOR MANKIND.

Robert Arthington, who has left £800,000 to over on his face and had to be lugged out by the foreign missions, was little known at Leeds. His life was that of a recluse, and few persons dared to intrude on his privacy. His wants were few, and at no time would he permit himself luxuries. His house in Headingly caused him much trouble, as he lived in constant terror of burglars. This fear led him to keep in constant touch with the police. Mr. Arthington was not the originator of the vast sum he was possessed of at his death. The bulk of his money he obtained by legacy, and, as he spent but little, the principal, with interest, soon mounted up. Years ago he was prepared to give a large sum to missionary work. but his scheme was so hedged by limitations that it was never put in force. The pecuniary legacies given by the will in clude a gift of £2,000 to the Free Church of Scotland Missionary Society for Indian Missions, £500 each to the Leeds Dispensary and the Leeds Blind Institution and £100 each to other charitable institutions in Leeds and Bristol. With the exception of a tenth of the residue of the estate, reserved for division among the testator's first cousins living at his death, the balance is devoted entirely to missionary purposes, provision being made in the will for representation of the Baptist Missionary Society of London and the London Missionary Society on It was the wish of the testator that the legacles should be applied for the purpose of giving to every tribe of mankind copies of "at least the Gospel of St. John and the Gospel of St. Luke, together with the Book of the Acts of the Apostles, printed in the language of that and that some members of each tribe should be taught to read and be urged to evangelize others. The first missionaries to leave for the Congo did so largely with the aid of Mr. Arthington's money, and the Arthington Falls, on the upp Congo, testify to their gratitude. The spread the gospel was the absorbing occupation of his life, and every effort will be made by those re-sponsible for the administration of the trust funds to carry out his wishes in strict accord-

FIRMER TONE IN GRAINS

BAD WEATHER NORTHWEST CON-SIDERABLE OF A FACTOR.

Gains Made in Wheat, and Onts-Hog Products Close at Mixed Changes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.-Trading on the Board of Trade to-day was quiet, but the market had a firmer tendency, December wheat closing 4c higher, corn a shade up and oats 1/401/4c higher. January provisions closed from 5c lower to 21/2c higher. The volume of trading in wheat was somewhat smaller than of late. Room bulls, who abandoned their lines early, replaced them partially on strong spots toward the close, and while the market was active at the advance there was enough realizing to hold it steady. The opening was firm on bad weather and strength in corn, followed by a decline on big receipts and heavy liquidation, along with weakness in corn. Good buying toward the close brought about a rally and the finish was about steady. December opened unchanged to 1/sc higher, at 721/4c to 721/sc, sold up to 72%c and declined to 71%c. On the final rally the price went to 72%c and the close was near the top, 1/2 higher, at 721/2c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 992,000 bu. Primary receipts were 1,385,-000 bu, against 1,075,000 bu a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 902 cars, which, with local receipts of 130 cars, four of contract grade, made a total of 1,032 cars, against 867 last week and 932 a

Corn was quiet but firm, with a slight decline early, in sympathy with wheat. Later the market became firmer on fair commission-house buying, influenced by rains in Illinois and Iowa, and the close was slightly above yesterday's final figures. December closed a shade higher, at 51%c, after selling between 51%@51%c and 52c. Receipts were 328 cars, fifty-nine of contract grade. Oats continued dull and featureless and 4c higher, at 314c, after ranging between 30%c and 31%c. Receipts were 253 cars. Provisions were inclined to weakness, liberal receipts of hogs and a decline of 10c in prices at the yards resulting in considerable liquidation by locals. The demand was limited. January pork closed 2½c lower, at $15.60; lard 2½c higher, at $9.15, and ribs 5c lower, at $8.20.

Estimated receipts for Monday-Wheat, 105 cars; corn, 345; oats, 240; hogs, 32,000 Leading futures ranged as follows:

Does Absent-Mindedness Mean Mental Failure!

American Medicine. This question is suggested by such facts as the large number of unaddressed letters posted each year. An English contemporary cites in evidence the official list of the articles left in one year in the London cabs and omnibuses It includes 850 canes, 19,000 umbrellas, 267 rugs, 49 opera glasses, 962 articles of jewelry, 180 watches, 3,230 purses, besides dogs, birds, cats, etc. The list seems like a pretty severe indictment of the mental qualities of the modern city dweller, and if the hard-pressed newspaper reporter happens to see it he will undoubtedly send off a harrowing syndicate letter to all the Sunday editors on this alarming demonstration of mental degeneracy of the twentieth-century man. Even our medical contemporary suggests the advisability of those who ride in omnibuses and who forget things of consulting a physician. The more marvelous thing, however, is that they do not forget far more often than they do. Civilization has suddenly increased a thousandfold the necessary and synchronous preoccupations of the mind. Singleness of attention was the predominant characteristic of mental action before our time of bewildering interests and duties. Not to have learned the trick of poising in the attention at one instant such a multitude of objects is certainly not a demonstration of mental failure, but rather of nonacquirement of a difficult art. But the more convincing proof of the actual triviality of the amount of forgetfulness is shown by the comparison of the number of memory-slips of the Londoner with the number who ride in omnibuses and other public carriages. Let us double the number of lost articles, and put the total at 50,000; if now we roughly estimate the number of rides each day in London as at least on the average one for each twentieth citizen, we calculate that in a year there are surely as many as 100,000,000 trips made. Consequently, on the average, a person forgets some article once in about every 2,000 trips taken. The alarmist adviser of consultation of an alienist for such failures of memory would probably smile at this evidence of his own mental failure.

CATTLE SCARCE AND WITHOUT IM-PORTANT CHANGE IN PRICES.

Hogs in Moderate Demand and Ten to Fifteen Cents Lower-Sheep Steady -Markets Elsewhere.

UNION STOCKYARDS, INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 25.-Cattle-Receipts, 250; shipments, 150. The marketing of cattle this week has been fairly iberal, showing an increase of 400 over last week, but a decrease of over 1,100 compared years ago. Thus far this year the receipts are 6,600 larger than the same period last year. The market this week has been distinctly a buyer's market. The receipts at all times were fully equal to or in excess of the demand, and it was rarely that sellers could dictate prices for any grade. It has been a long time since there was as little interest manifested in the market, and, in a word, the trade throughout the week has been very tiresome and unsatisfactory to the selling side. Prices in nearly all lines have been reduced, and the market was made more sluggish because in so many instances the cattle were having to sell at a loss to the owner. To add to the hardship of salesmen values were also irregular, and many times it was impossible to sell equai kinds at the same prices in the same day. As many dealers expressed it, "nobody knows how the market is." In the steer department it is safe to say that all fat cattle that heretofore have been selling from $5 to $7 sold on an average of about 50c lower for the week. A class that have been selling from $4 to $4.50 did not show much change, and the good strong fleshy feeders remained about steady, but common stockers, while generally believed to be lower, had no fixed value, and an estimate of the market is out of the question. It will be remembered that a week ago yesterday there was a very strong market for good female butcher cattle, and prices this week have been lower than at that time, but there was not a great deal of change from early in the week values. There was some complaint among buyers of the scarcity of thick-fat cows, and they believe that many times they were forced to pay a premium buyers took off nearly 25c. The calf market has been strong all week, but at the extreme close there were no sales as high as earlier in the week. The highest prices paid this week were $6.50 for steers, $5 for helfers, $4.75 for cows, $4.25 for bulls and $8 for calves. The receipts today were very fair for a Saturday market and consisted of cattle of just fair to medium quality. The demand, as usual, on Saturday was not important, but sales were not perceptibly and it is advisable for shippers to be very careful in buying cattle in the country. Quotations: Good to choice steers, 1,350 lbs and upwards ..... Hogs-Receipts, 4,500; shipments, 1,000. The receipts of hogs this week have been very fair, the total showing an increase of 4,000 over last week, but a decrease of nearly 8,000 compared with the same week a year ago and 1,000 compared with the corresponding week two years ago. Thus far this year the receipts are over 170,000 smaller than the same period last year. For the week ending yesterday the leading local buyers bought a total of 13,576, against 8,047 the preceding week and 26,128 the same week a year ago. During the same period the shipments were 10,299, against 11,083 the preceding week and 6,271 the corresponding week a year ago. This has been another week of declining prices in the hog market. At the beginning of the week the downward movement was very rapid, and by the middle of the week buyers had succeeded in reducing prices about 400 per 100 lbs. Then there was a temporary improvement for one day, after which the market resumed the downward course, and at the extreme close of the week values were 45@50c lower than the close of last week. There has been a very fair demand for the good weight hogs throughout the week, and, with packers taking the cheaper grades, satisfactory clearthe week was $7.35, on Monday. It was $ Wednesday, and at the extreme close of the week $7.07%. The receipts to-day were comparatively liberal for a Saturday market, being 1,500 larger than a week ago and almost as large as a year ago. The market opened with a slow demand from outside sources and some of the principal shippers were not represented. Therefore, the conditions were not favorable to local packers, and they were bidding decidedly lower prices. Salesmen were a little reluctant in accepting figures offered, but, on account of the limited competition and the fact that this was Saturday and, therefore, not a very good time to hold hogs, they were finally persuaded that they would have to accept buyers' terms. Consequently the market was fairly active, and prices were generally considered a big dime lower, while frequently there was probably 15c Later in the day shippers received orders, and for a moment the market seemed to rally a little, but the extreme close was not perceptibly better than the opening, and a few loads that came in very late did not sell. extreme range in prices was from $7.35 to $7.071/2. and a very large percentage of the supply sold above $6.60. This week's receipts of sheep and lambs were not quite as large as last week, 2,200 smaller than the same week a year ago and over 1,000 larger than the corresponding week two years ago. Thus far this year the receipts are over 19,000 smaller than the same period last year. The supplies have been just about large enough to meet the requirements of all buyers. Therefore, there has been rather an active market at all times and no occasion for much change in prices. Occasionally stock that was not fully up to the standard in quality or flesh was inclined to sell weaker, and toward the close of the week, with increased requirements from outside sources, the good stock sold stronger and in some cases 10025c higher than recently. of what is right, the whole issue is at once There was no important demand for feeders, and consequently it was more or less difficult to dispose of the thin stock. The highest prices realized this week were $5.25 for lambs and $3.85 for sheep. The receipts to-day were small, but about as large as expected at this time. quality was about like the average heretofore this week, and, with a steady demand from local butchers, all changed hands at steady prices. Most of the lambs here brought $5, and the top price for sheep was $3.65, with other sales at $2.50@3.50. Quotations:

RUSSIA'S CENSORSHIP.

itors Find It Serious.

London Express. To be an editor of a Russian newspaper one must not only be a journalist, but a diplomat. One must have the gift of veiling one's words in such a manner that, although to the searching eye of the censor there appears nothing calculated to disturb the state, yet the readers-the subscriberswill shake their heads knowingly, discovering political meaning in a little sketch ostensibly fiction, but bear reality to those who read between the lines. The first press censorship was established simultaneously with the first issue of the oldest Russian newspaper, the St. Petersburgskiya Vjedmosti. The literal wording of the ukase was as follows: "Observe that nothing is printed in the St. Petersburgskiya Vjedmosti derogatory to the Tsar, the fatherland, the army, the police and the government officials.' Now the net of press laws has spread with the growth of the press until at the present time the editor is entangled in the meshes of restriction. At the head of the censorship is the minister of the interior, and he has his hirelings in every town where man puts hi thoughts on paper and sells them for kopecks. The censor committee of each town has a "natchalnik," or chief-the chief censor, as he is titled-and he is directly responsible to the minister of the interior. There are two grades of censorship. The first class includes those journals the whole "copy" of which has to be sent in MS. for the censor's approval before a line of it reaches the compositor's hands. After a few years, however, this rigorous system is relaxed, and the second grade comes into force. Those editors who have passed through the distressing period of having to send their "copy" to the printer via the press censor need now only send the specimen number of newspaper to the committee every day two hours before publication. Should the committee see anything in the sample copy contrary to their own ideas confiscated. The punishments meted out to editors for contravening the press laws are planned with the diabolical ingenuity of a Ko-Ko. For the first offense the editor is merely cautioned, and for the second the journal is forbidden the right to take advertisements for any term from three months to a year. For the third misdemeanor the journal is suspended for a period of from six months to a year, and the editor has to pay a fine of £50 to £500. If the editorial exchequer is in a low state and Common to medium lambs ...... 3.00@4.25 | the money cannot be paid the editor must sit in a cell for six months. Should he offend again official patience is exhausted; the journal is suppressed entirely, and the editor has to appear before a

Brooklyn Eagle. "I'm going to study law," he announced. "And practice it?"

"Oh, no." "Well, I've always been told that a man never should sign a document that he does not thoroughly understand."
